Watershed and Reef Restoration Project proposed

On a project which will build resiliency in our community. To be notified of upcoming meetings, email: bshinno@pulumalanai.com

The goals of the program are:

• Protecting and revitalizing the Lanai Hale watershed.
• Protecting the endangered ‘ua’u (Hawaiian petrel).
• Safeguarding the near shore Keomoku reef through prevention of runoff and further land accretion.
• Preserving and improving community recreation, subsistence fishing and gathering, cultural sites and practices and other land, coastline and nearshore reefs.
• Fencing off this area from deer and sheep and will help protect it from further erosion and encourage the regrowth of our native forest. This section of the island is now part of the Lanai Game Management Area which is presently open to hunters with permits from Pulama Lanai.

When Lanaihale was fenced off to protect our watershed from deer, many residents opposed it. Today, the hale is covered with thick, lush fern and more colonies of ‘u’au nest there. Imagine what we will be creating for future generations to enjoy if we can restore 20,000 acres of eroding land and cover it with a forest of native plants!

Please come to Pulama Lanai’s community meetings to learn more about this project and other things that are occurring in our community. To be notified of upcoming meetings, email: bshinno@pulumalanai.com

The three houses on Lanai Avenue just past the Lanai Theater are beautiful! They are replicas of the homes which once stood there and were considered beyond repair. The outsides are replicas, the insides will be modern. They are possible, our older plantation houses are under renovation. Often it is easier to tear down a house rather than trying to repair it. We are so thankful that when it’s possible, our older plantation houses are being saved. They are reminders of our plantation heritage and help to retain the history of our town.

Coming along nicely!

The only thing nicer than watching new buildings being built to provide homes for Lanai residents is watching our town’s old plantation houses being restored to “like new” conditions! The three houses on Lanai Avenue past the corner of Kaumalapau Highway, is the fourth house which is

Letters to Alberta

It is with great excitement and some sadness that I say farewell to this wonderful little community. I have been an incubator for Anuenue Juice and for my own personal growth as well. You may have heard, we’ve recently expanded the business to Maui.

Thank you to each and every unique and special person in this quirky little town. I’ve been so blessed to cultivate relationships with so many awesome people here, from the newest locals to the wisest kupuna. I have felt amazing aloha from this community. I send out a huge mahalo to my team of juice ninjas, my family, near and far, especially my son, Skyler. I also thank my amazing friends, MEO, Pulama Lanai, the Lanai Chamber of Commerce, Lanai High & Elementary School, fellow entrepreneurs and most important, our customers, who have been with us through thick and thin! They have believed in us, and encouraged us, and without them, there would be no Anuenue Juice.

Over my eight years on Lanai, I have learned so much about myself, my business and my neighbors, which on Lanai, is everyone! It has been a fun ride and we’ll just be one island away so come say hi anytime! We have a cute little spot at the Wahaku Banyan Tree at the corner of Market & Vineyard Streets.

We’re also at the Maui Swap Meet each Saturday in Kahului. You may see us at MACC events and Maui Swap Meet and I’ll be on Lanai once in a while to stay connected. I’d also like to introduce the new owner of the juice truck, Tanya Ashworth. Tanya has been along for the Anuenue Juice journey since 2014 and she has helped me tremendously along the way with her ideas, support and loyalty. She also always seems to be a step ahead of me - which is what I am eternally grateful for!

Tanya has given the truck a new look and a new menu. The menu is based on what you already know and love with some new and fun twists! I couldn’t be more elated about the way things came together I’m so happy that Tanya can continue providing delicious fresh juice and smoothies and acai bowls to the community!

Check out Lanai Wai Juice Truck at the Saturday Markets and stay tuned for new locations in the future. Please follow us both on Instagram @lanawaijuicetruck for new items, fun facts, and updates. A hui hou with love, Tammy Ringbauer

Mayor’s Economic Development Office grants total over $254,000

The Mayor’s Office of Economic Development has issued more than $254,000 in grants to various local organizations in the third quarter of fiscal year 2019. Grantees were selected based on their economic impact within Maui County through business and/or jobs created or sustained. Improvements to Maui County in the areas of environment, agriculture, business, sports, arts and culture were also supported.

Mayor Michael Victorino said, “Congratulations to all of the grantees, and mahalo for all the great work they do for our community.”

Although many of Lanai’s non-profit and for-profit organizations could have applied for grants, only two of the grantees in this cycle have projects that may or will benefit Lanai. They are:

University of Hawaii - $50,000
Maui Nui seabird recovery

The Maui Nui Seabird Recovery Program raises awareness about seabirds and their needs through dedicated outreach of professionals who educate and connect visitors and residents with these iconic animals.

The Nature Conservancy - $25,000
Coral reef conservation

The project conducts a multi-site conservation action plan process for coral reef recovery for two sites: Manele-Hulopo’e on Lanai and Honolua-Mokule’ia on Maui. For information on applying for a grant from Maui County’s Office of Economic Development visit: mauicounty.gov/148/grants-awards

How can we stop illegal dumping?

By Alberta de Jetley

The Lanai Sanitary Landfill is only a short distance away from Lanai City so why are some residents going through all of the trouble of hauling their trash to out-of-the-way places to dump it? I always wondered about it.

When there was a large trash bin at Lanai Cemetery, it was always filled with household trash. When the bin was full, trash was just dumped alongside it. The Lanai Sanitary Landfill is closer and easier to drive to than the cemetery. Have you ever wondered why some illegal dumpers go all the way to the end of the Koemoku Road to dump their trash on the ground at the end of the pavement instead of just taking it to the landfill instead?

The County landfill is free and its workers do an excellent job of covering each day’s load of trash and keeping the entire area clean and neat! Pulama Lanai collects white appliances, batteries, old tires and scrap metal several times a year. It’s amazing how many junk cars and trucks they haul off the island too. So, can someone tell me why a washing machine is dumped on a hillside destroying a wonderful view of Maui?

An old sofa, mattresses and other trash was dumped in the Mahana area. Why? It’s sad that this is happening. The majority of our residents love and care for our aina; this is our island home and we want to care for and respect it’s natural beauty.

It’s time for us to get tough! Report illegal dumping: you wouldn’t let anyone drop a truckload of trash in front of your home, would you? So why are we allowing dumpers to desecrate our aina? It’s something to think about!

Palawai research project delayed but coming soon

Several months ago, Lanai Today featured an article about the University of Hawaii’s research project to take core samples of Well 23 in Palawai Basin. The project was delayed but at the end of April, a team was present on Lanai to begin preliminary water sampling from several of the island’s wells. Leading the University’s team is Dr. Nicole Lautze, the principal research investigator of the project. This is the first time that the University has the opportunity to study a caldera outside of the Big Island of Hawaii. The well is unusual in that it contains brackish water at a high elevation and the water is warm. Although Dr. Lautze had left the island earlier in the day, Daniel Dores, a Geology technician, Scott Rowland, a Geologist, and Colin Ferguson, a UH grad student were able to stop off in Lanai City for a brief visit. Scott Rowland is a specialist in Volcanology, Geochemistry, and Petrology Division and had been invited to “tag along” on this initial visit to help with the water samplings. He is in the Department of Earth Sciences at UH, formerly known as Geology and Geophysics.

The drilling equipment has not arrived on the island yet but hopefully when the research project is underway, there will be opportunities for Lanai’s students and interested residents to visit the site.

Tangled ropes removed from shoreline

Good fishing Samaritans managed to hook up to an unusual catch and perform a nice public service. A sprawling, tangled wad of what appeared to be ropes used to anchor boats had drifted ashore on the rocks by Puapepe. The men swam ashore in choppy surf, hooked up the tangled mess, and slowly towed it behind their boat into the Manele Small Boat Harbor. After a good deal of work with the sodden cords, they managed to get it all on land so it could be safely disposed of. Tangled ropes are a floating hazard for marine life that may become entangled.

Trail closed through construction zone

Hikers are reminded the Kolekole Ridge trail is closed through the construction zone. Please do not use the side road to the former Experience at Koele club house. Use the Keomoku Road to Cemetery Road which will take you to the Munro Trail. The back road from Koele Villas going past the old silver tank is also closed. Hikers/walkers can go through the Cavendish Golf Course by walking alongside the first fairway to access the road which will take them back to Fifth Street and Lanai Avenue. Color maps showing the closures and open hiking routes are posted around town or check with Pula-ma Lanai offices.

Lanai Cancer Fund Available

Once your application is approved, you will receive a monetary gift of $500. Lanai Cat Sanctuary names new manager

Contributed by Kristin Herrick

New Lanai Cat Sanctuary manager, Joe Adarna, has landed on his feet in his dream job, working with more than 600 kitties on Lanai. Adarna took over daily operations of the sanctuary in January after spending five years running the admissions center and serving as an anti-cruelty officer for an animal shelter on Oahu. Joe has a love for cats and is determined to make Hawaii a better place for felines.

Timing was perfect as Adarna was looking for a new experience and Lanai Cat Sanctuary executive director Keoni Vaughn, was looking for a new manager. Joe brought a wealth of knowledge and leadership skills with him but admits he’s learned so much more about running a sanctuary already.

“It’s been a great experience so far and I’ve gotten a good understanding of day to day operations of the entire shelter,” said Adarna. “It’s been great to work with a true community organization and broaden my skills in the medical and financial aspects of running a sanctuary; things I didn’t do in my previous position. I couldn’t be happier.”

Adarna said one of the best things about his new job is how welcoming the staff and community have been. “Everybody has been so accepting and it’s been a really nice transition,” said Adarna. “The staff is amazing, they know all the cats so well and take such great care of them.”

Joe grew up around animals but didn’t always dream of a career with them. He served eight years in the U.S. Navy, going on three deployments, before his time at an Oahu shelter sparked his passion for animal welfare. Joe, whose Filipino dad and Lithuanian mother live on Oahu, was afraid he’d have to travel to the mainland to find the kind of job he wanted. He and his family are happy to be so close.

Once he gets more settled in at work, Adarna plans to get active in the community, getting involved with local athletic groups. He’s also interested in volunteering with environmental causes.

Adarna has plans to improve the Lanai Cat Sanctuary too. “One of my goals is to streamline operations in order to provide even better care for our cats,” he said. “We’re rescuing more cats every day and expanding the shelter so our workflow needs to be as smooth as possible.”

In addition to the sanctuary expansion, electricity is almost ready to be switched on, which Adarna says will make things easier for the staff and provide visitors with an even better experience. He also noted that he’s always looking for cat-lovers to join the team as staff or as a volunteer. There are full time, part-time, and even temporary positions available. The Sanctuary offers amazing benefits including medical, dental, vision, sick leave, vacation, holidays, and even a retirement plan! No experience is needed. Just a willingness to learn and love cats. Email Joe at Joe@LanaCatSanctuary.org or 808-215-9066.

The Lanai Ballers would like to thank everyone who joined us on Saturday, April 20, 2019 for the First Annual Lanai Bunny Hop. Lots of eggs and exercise and not too much rain made for a great day. I want to thank all our sponsors who donated to make this run happen. Also, a big shout out to bunny helpers, Susan Woolsey, Chanette Schilling, Melanie Emmel, and Natalie Ropa for all they did to help us to put it all together. The Bunny Hop took place on the Cavendish Golf Course, and attracted 120 children and adults.

Don’t forget that coming up in December 2019 is our Third Annual Jingle Bell Dash. We will use the same route and look forward to everyone coming out again. It’s a lot of fun for keiki and adults! Look for Early Registration for this upcoming event.

Free Comic Books Day!

Lanai Public Librarian Peggy Fink dressed up in a Wonder Woman costume to give away FREE comic books on Saturday, May 4 at a table set up outside of Café 565. She was joined by the library’s staff, Chelsea Trevino and Delarae Basques, and volunteer Margarete Barstans. Free Comic Book Day (FCBD) 2019 features an amazing selection of comic book titles for the industry’s most anticipated annual event which happens Saturday, May 4, 2019 at participating comic book shops worldwide.

Comic shop retailers chose fifty-one titles overall to be available on Free Comic Book Day: twelve Gold Sponsor comics and thirty-nine Silver Sponsor comics that give fans a great opportunity to discover new titles and genres. This year’s announcement of Silver Sponsor comics includes such great titles as Minecraft, Disney’s The Incredibles, Little Luca, Bob’s Burgers, The Amazing Spider-Man, My Hero Academia, Star Wars Adventures, and more.

“Each year, we continue to push ourselves to bring fans the very best Free Comic Book Day experience,” said Joe Field, originator of FCBD, and owner of Flying Colors Comics in Concord, CA. “The caliber, strength and depth of this year’s comic book titles is fantastic and independent comic book shop retailers all over the world can’t wait to treat fans and customers to an incredible day of fun, discovery, and learning about comic books and comic book shops.”

Although Lanai does not have a comic book store, thanks to Lanai Public Library’s dedicated staff, it’s possible to hold it in our community. Mahalo for their hard work!

Lanai Car Rental provides transportation options

Lanai visitors now have a new transportation option to travel around the island driven independently. Lanai Car Rental (LCR) offers vehicle rentals for every type of visitor, from Kama’aina and tourists to business travelers and government workers.

With an extensive fleet of vehicles on the island, LCR customers can select from three types of cars: the all-electric and compact Chevy Bolt, the 4-wheel drive Jeep Wrangler Sahara, and the Ford Transit Minivan capable of transporting up to seven passengers.

“We have seen a consistent demand for more independent travel options on Lanai,” said Doug Stephenson, who oversees LCR and is Director of Fleet Maintenance at Pulama Lanai. “This service gives visitors more choices, not only from the standpoint of how they explore the island but also in terms of the types of vehicles available.”

Vehicle rental rates begin at $75 per day for kama’aina guests and government workers for almost any type of vehicle. Discounts are also available. LCR is also proud to partner with Expeditons Ferry to offer visitors convenient package deals for those traveling from Maui to Lanai. For information on packages, go to: go-lanai.com. Molokai residents sought as applicants for Maui County Boards and Commissions

Molokai residents are being sought as applicants to serve on Maui County boards and commissions. There’s a current opening for a Molokai representative on the Liquor Control Commission. Applications are accepted on an ongoing basis for vacant positions on boards, commissions and committees due to term expirations, vacancies and resignations. Responsibilities include hearing public testimony, reviewing policies and standards and making recommendations. Positions are appointed by the Mayor, confirmed by the Maui County Council and have terms lasting two to five years. While no monetary compensation is provided for serving on a board or commission, the public’s participation helps provide an important government service. Volunteers are reimbursed for allowable travel expenses.

Anyone interested in serving on a board or commission may apply online at www.mauicounty.gov/Boards. Paper applications are available at the County Building in the Mayor’s Office on the 9th floor, and in the Information Booth in the main lobby; at all public libraries; at Council Services offices on Molokai and Lanai and in Hana; and at all Parks and Recreation Permit offices (Wailuku, Makawao, Lahaina, Kīhei, Hana, Molokai and Lanai). Paper applications should be mailed to: Mayor Michael Victorino, County of Maui, 200 S. High St., Ninth Floor, Wailuku, HI 96793, or faxed to (808) 270-7870. For more information, call 270-8211.

Alberta’s note: I am sharing this notice in hopes that Lanai residents will share it with their Molokai ohana. It’s important that both Lanai and Molokai are represented on County commissions.
Lānaʻi Health Care Heroes

Everyone knows that doctors and nurses are the health-care heroes of any hospital. They save lives in emergency situations, nurture chronic patients back to health, and get most of the glory.

Yet just like it takes a village to raise a child, it takes numerous people behind the scenes at a hospital to keep it running smoothly like a fine-tuned, state-of-the-art health machine.

The unsung heroes at Lānaʻi Community Hospital include the maintenance and the ground crews. On an isolated island in the middle of the Pacific such as Lānaʻi, with no on-island distributor of durable medical equipment and other health supplies, three men, unsung heroes all, must secure life-saving goods themselves to make sure that they are at the fingertips of the doctors and the nurses in order to properly care for the patients. “We always have a pre-shift meeting before we start off each day,” says Maintenance Supervisor Jimbon Costales. “I develop a list to give to our landscaper and maintenance man. That list includes routine trips to Kaumalapau Harbor to pick up goods. We always have to be prepared with enough supplies and for emergencies, in case there is a hurricane or a tsunami.”

Born in the Philippines and relocating to Lānaʻi with his parents as many Lānaianos have done before him, Jimbon wears a big smile when he mentions his well-known island nicknames, “James Bond,” “Jimmy” and “Lover Boy.”

“They call me whatever,” he says with a sheepish grin. “I came here when I was 2 years old,” he adds. “I graduated from Lānaʻi High in 2006. I have two kids: Shaia, 6, and Kasen, 2. Jimbon has been an integral and hardworking employee at LCH for almost three years now, laboring behind the scenes to keep everything in order, including the cooling units.

“I went to school in Las Vegas to take air-conditioning and refrigeration. That’s my background; he says of his expertise. “In the hospital, you have to know all trades, basically. We’re always on standby 24/7, so if there is some kind of a hospital emergency, one of us is always available to rush right in for a trouble call or to fix something.”

It just goes to show what a vital role Jimbon and his crew play, what a difference they make in the wellbeing of the patients.

Since Maui Health System took over in 2017, Jimbon’s crew, which includes his cousin, Hanel Costales, also do improvements and installations that otherwise would require skilled labor from off island. This saves on travel costs and housing. They most recently completed upgrades in the long-term ward of the hospital.

“We did all brand new paint in that area,” he says. “We also painted the outside of the building and downstairs in the kitchen area and we installed new flooring. We know how important these upgrades are, for Lānaʻi patients to have a nice place near to their loved ones.”

Hanel is also a native of the Philippines and moved to the small-knit community of Lānaʻi when he was in intermediate school.

“He has three kids,” says Jimbon. “Hanel’s oldest is Jurian, then there’s Josette, and Jackson. He’s a part-time employee. He does finish work here. He takes readings. His tasks include plumbing, checking oxygen tanks, painting, changing light bulbs. He does basic maintenance work.”

Jayson “Ace” Jimenez is also originally from the Philippines. In fact, 38.9 percent of Lānaʻi’s population is Filipino. He arrived on island just three years ago and he has three kids—Kaiser, Cassandra and Kien. “You can always depend on Ace,” says Jimbon. “That’s why we call him that. Besides grounds keeping, he also helps us with maintenance work.”

As part of Jayson’s job, he sits atop an Aiken riding lawn mower, maneuvering around the steeply pitched slopes like a deer in the mountains. The fruits of his tending to the community garden are many. He brings joy to patients and passersby, situated at the lower level of Lānaʻi Community Hospital under tutoring Cook Pines with views of Dole Park.

“The garden that we have outside is basically for the community’s use to come eat, chill, sit down on their breaks. It’s just a nice place to relax,” says Jimbon. “It’s right in front of the hospital, off the lower lobby. It’s easy for the dialysis patients to come out before or after treatments. Public health and most of our staff go eat there, too.”

“Of course, we feel that we are appreciated,” says Jimbon. “From the nurses to the doctors to all of our employees.”

This month we celebrate National Nurses Week (May 6-12) and National Hospital Week (May 13 – 18). Please help us honor all of our Lānaʻi Community Hospital doctors, nurses, and staff by showing your appreciation for the care they provide to you and your loved ones. Mahalo, on behalf of Maui Health System, to the healthcare industry and workforce across the state and nation for their contributions to healthy communities near and far.

Resolving conflicts and disputes through Mediation

Contributed by Tricia Morris

Even in the Land of Aloha and Rainbows, conflicts and disputes arise in our daily lives. Hawaii has a long and beautiful tradition of resolution and facilitation of disputes. In each community, there was an elder or wise-one who was respected by others. They were neutral witnesses who helped the disputing parties resolve their conflicts in a peaceful way. This tradition has inspired the current facilitators/peacemakers such as Dr. Peter Adler, who was the Founder and Executive Director of The Neighborhood Justice Center in Honolulu in 1979. This later became the Mediation Center of the Pacific. More recently, I became similarly inspired. The courtroom is a relatively modern method of settling conflict. Mediation and facilitation of resolutions compares very favorably with similar matters that have been taken to the Courts. Courtrooms have been taken to the Courts. Courtrooms exacerbate the hostility between people, while mediation restores harmony. Courts have limited time and the "arguments" are directed to the legal and intellectual perspective. Relationships are usually damaged further in court proceedings where mediation they are generally preserved or enhanced. Mediation allows parties a chance to be heard, to express their grievances or defenses at an emotional level and be heard within a safe environment. The meetings are facilitated by an impartial trained mediator, often called a Neutral. This leads to a productive dialogue and negotiation with intent toward a mutual solution that is acceptable to both parties. Life happens. Conflicts are valuable in that they allow people to express the hurts, upsets, and differences that occur with living and relating. Too often "sweeping under the rug" leads to unexpressed feelings and resentments that lead to more of the same, since nothing is resolved.

A particular area in which mediation has been proven to be effective is divorce and child custody. Most importantly, Mediation can lead to a deeply improved relationship between parents and children, as well as between divorced parents. The lessened conflict and greater accord lead to lasting positive effects for everyone, long after the original Mediation. Research substantiates that lessened conflict has dramatic long-term positive impact on children including through their adult years. The goodwill resulting from mediation also allows the parents to move into their futures with a greater sense of well being and self esteem. An emerging area for Mediation is relationship or marriage. Agreements between people in close relationships can help prevent breakthroughs of long-term relationships and divorce in marriages. Mediation is generally found to be helpful in family disputes. Family mediation regarding the long-term care of an elder and other areas of disagreement can reduce stress and facilitate more peaceful future interactions.

Mediation and Conflict Resolution are effectively used in many civil disputes including employment issues, when legal action is being considered. Areas of conflict that have lent themselves well to Mediation are real estate, business, medical error and malpractice, trusts and estates, neighborhood and employment. Things have changed with culture and time. Mediators aren't usually members of the ohana today and the spirit is still with us. Let's find resolution to our problems, peace in ourselves and our communities and emanate it to the world.

Alberta's note: Tricia Morris loves her work! She combines her business and financial background with compassion and empathy to create a safe environment for honest communication. "I want to help find common ground to transform a stressful life experience," she said. She works throughout the Hawaiian Islands, the Mainland U.S. and Asia and is also available for Teleconferencing. Contact her at (808)283-7811 or go to: Tricia@TriciaMorris.com.

 nun of appreciation. Be that presence of Grace as often as you can. The key is to give full, undistracted attention. In this busy world full of tasks and errands, activities and meetings, this is a high goal indeed, yet is can actually be life changing.

bend a minute looking into your loved one’s eyes, listening peacefully. The quality of your attention is directly proportionate to the degree of your concentra tion. So put down the device, and focus your undivided attention on the one in front of you. Young children crave our attention. “Watch this, Mom!” is such a frequent refrain. They’re saying not only “See how big and strong I am,” but also, “See me. Show me I matter to you.”

With teens and all the dramas in their lives, we need to listen with respect, not diminish what is happening to them. “Your best friend told your secret? Wow. What’s that like for you?” Or “What does that mean to you?” Don’t rationalize; empha thize. The fruits of the spirit, named in Galatians 5 – love, joy, peace, patience, kind ness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, and self-control – don’t include popularity, or the number of Facebook likes. Recently in the town pool, I witnessed a father with his two children. They quietly smiled at them as they swam around him and held onto him, laughing with delight the whole time. This was truly sacred play, an act of love and true Grace.

Aloha to “Old Guy”

By Alberta de Jetley

T hrough the years, Lanai Cat Sanctuary has become “home” to hundreds of cats, all with different personalities! One cat in particular though, always had a special place in my heart.

More than five years ago, “Old Guy” came to the sanctuary as a feral cat and he was riddled with cancer. Although he had numerous surgeries that disfigured him; it didn’t stop him from being one of the sanctuary’s most loving and welcoming greeter to visitors.

I always made it a point to spend a few minutes saying hello to “Old Guy” whenever I was at the sanctuary. Even though his face was marred with what looked like an open wound, a missing ear, and minus an eye, he was the most beautiful cat I have ever known. A few months ago, when his health started to decline, he was moved into the David Theno Senior Center. Although he was still able to greet his many admirers, it was soon apparent that it was time for him to leave us. For those who have never had a pet, it may seem silly to mourn a cat but “Old Guy” wasn’t just a cat. He was a testament to what can happen when people care enough to make a difference. Tributes and donations in “Old Guy’s” memory have been pouring into the sanctuary. Mahalo to all of you who loved him too!

Put down your cell phone and connect!

s omething that drives me mad – or more accurately, sad – is when I see people together, paying atten tion to their screens instead of each other, especially a parent who is with a child. It used to bother my husband terribly when we were having dinner if I jumped up whenever the phone rang. To him, it meant I would rather talk to anyone rather than be present to him. Fortunately, I received the teachable moment and agreed to a new family boundary; no calls during meals times. Charity isn’t the only virtue that is home. Courtesy does too.

According to intelligence data from OSMA (Global System Mobile Association), there are now over 8.9 billion mobile connections worldwide, which surpasses the current world population of 7.69 billion according to U.S. digital analyst estimates. Countries with the most cell phone usage are first China, then India and the U.S. There are more cell phones than people in the world.

The problem is that the beeps, whistles and buzzes of our mobile devices have become a sirens call, an addictive trigger that signals to us that we are important, we matter. Then there is curiosity, which is what drove me to answer the landline before the day. Who could it be on the other end? This is a harmless addiction either. It is a deprivation in the truest sense. We are told in the scriptures of all traditions, attention, presence.

and what is the primary language of love? Connection, attention, presence.

“My dear brothers and sisters, take note of this: Everyone should be quick to listen, slow to speak and slow to become angry.” James 1:19. The Baha’i Writings note of this: Everyone should be quick to listen, slow to speak and slow to become angry.

Leonora Pagampao Agliam
January 25, 1926 – April 1, 2019

The Agliam Family, would like to extend our heartfelt gratitude to all who shared their time with us in the Celebration of Life for our beloved mother, Leonora Pagampao Agliam, at Lanai ILWU Hall and Lanai Sacred Hearts Catholic Church on April 12 and 13. Your presence, words of sympathy, generous offerings, beautiful flowers, and prayers have blessed us greatly through a challenging time.

Mahalo to the families of children that Mom and Dad cared for. We loved all the memories and stories that were shared. After Mom retired from Dole, she babysat many children, along with her grand children and great-grandchildren. She was a HACKADAM (helping child around Dad so much that they sounded like him when they spoke. They remembered “The Little Red Car” and watching “Lion King” and “White Fang” with him.

Thank you to all the children who continued to come to our house to visit Gramma and to show her their children. We thank all those that remembered Mom for helping them when a fish bone was stuck in their throat! Her attitude, values, faith and hope have brought a part of us. Her love will always remain in our hearts and her spirit will continue to guide us. The legacy of love that Mom left us will never be our source of light and strength to carry on until we meet her again.
